HUNTERS ORGANIZE TO URGE PASSAGE OF BILL

Sportsmen Will Use Influence in This District

CIRCULATING PETITIONS

Will be Presented to the State Senate and House of Representatives

An organization of sportsmen of Charleroi was formed last night for the purpose of helping secure the passage of the proposed hunters' license law, now pending in the Legislature. The organization was formed at a meeting at the Bank of Charleroi, at which Kerfoot W. Daly was elected president and W. H. Reese secretary. Petitions will be circulated for signatures of hunters of the valley section, asking the Senate and House of Representatives to pass the bill. Petitions will be left at each of the three local banks, T. P. Grant's and D. R. Duvall's hardware stores, Joe Irone's barber shop and all the clubs. Besides this petitions will be sent to all towns along the valley between Monongahela and Brownsville.

Prothonotary H F. Ward of Washington attended the meeting and made a talk on the proposed license bill. The law proposed in Pennsylvania has been tried in other places and has been found to be very beneficial in many ways in the propogation of game and the protection to agriculturalists of annoyance arising from the irresponsible and heretofore irrespressible trespasser.

NO MORE DUNNING BY POSTAL CARDS

Gas, Electric and Water Companies Not Included in New Ruling

Electric light, gas and water companies may send bills by post card through the mails the same as usual, but other companies who resort to this method of dunning will run up against the law hereafter, according to a ruling which just went into effect last week.

Postmaster General Hitchcock issued an order notifying all postmasters to return to the sender any postal cards which mention debts. The department has no authority to exclude them from the mails, but can refuse to transmit them to their destination. By this new law, collecting agencies, which have heretofore reaped a rich harvest will be hard hit.

POST-LENTEN SOCIAL AFFAIR IS PLANNED

An event of much consequence in social circles will be the reception to be given by the Y. L. S., St. Jerome's church, Easter Monday, April 17, in Bank of Charleroi Hall. Jenkins orchestra of seven pieces will furnish the music. The hall will be tastefuly decorated in the colors of the society, and the committee in charge will leave nothing undone to make the affair a social success.

FOREIGNERS ARRESTED

Jacob Purilla and Kiril Sokel, Russians of the hill district in the vicinty of Eleventh street, are complainants in informations beforeJustice of the Peace E.E. Rice, charging Alex Zuroff, Kornilif Dargna, and Harit Novak with aggravated assault and battery with intent to kill. The informations were made as the outcome of a christening on Sunday, for which seven foreigners have been arrested by the police to be given a hearing before Burgess George W. Risbeck. The two complainants in the justice's information are pretty much battered up, and show that there was considerable livliness at the proceeding. The others interested in the proceedings beside the five mentioned are Ned Pavelhak and Joe Beraff.

BIDS SENT IN TO ENGINEER'S OFFICE FOR NEW STATION

Contract for Charleroi Edifice Will Likely be Awarded Soon by Pennsylvania Railroad

All bids on the proposed new Charleroi station were sent in to Division Engineer E. B. Wiseman's office today, and the contract will likely be let within a few days. Among the bidders is the Charleroi Lumber company.

Indications are that work will be started shortly after the letting of the contract upon the new station, in order that it may be finished this summer or fall. Division Engineer E. B. Wiseman will have supervision of the work.

Before work is begun the present station and baggage room will have to be moved. They will most likely be moved nearer the freight house, to give plenty of room for work.

CHARLEROI MEN GUESTS AT STATE COLLEGE BANQUET

J. K. Johnston and H. D. Mason Give Talks on Mining Questions

General Superintendent Jesse K. Johnston and Mining Engineer H. D. Mason, Jr., have just returned from State College, where they spoke at the annual banquet of the Mining Engineering Society. Over 300 of State's Mining School under graduates were present, and the singing of Penn State songs, led by the college orchestra, and the booming forth frequently of the good old college yell, rendered the occasion a most inspiring and enthusiastic one. During their stay at the college, Messrs. Johnston and Mason were entertained at the home of President E.E. Sparks and at he Kappa Signa fraternity house. The banquet was held at the Nitany Inn and the following toasts responded to:

"Our Mining Society," Dean W. R. Crane.

"What the Future Promises," Ex-Governor James A. Beaver

"Coal Mining as Compared with other Hazardous Occupations, J. K. Johnston.

"Penn Sate Men in Coal Mining," Joe Mason, '07.

"The Penn State Spirit Forever," "Bull" McCleary, '10.

"We will soon march out from 'Old Main", "Alex" Gray, '11.

"Our College," President E. E. Sparks.

The toastmaster was H. E. Bowers, class of '11.

Business Men of Two Towns at Back of Transportation Company

Business men of Fayette City and Belle Vernon have started a movement for the establishment of automobile passenger service between Gillespie, a small suburb of Fayette City and Belle Vernon. A route via Fairhope has been mapped out and a schedule arranged to be put into effect in case the arrangements go through. Connections may thus be made with the electric cars to and from Charleroi and Monessen and North Belle Vernon. Three large machines are to be purchased and the plan is to eventually have the route extended to Charleroi and Monessen.

ENTERTAINMENT COURSE AT CLOSE

Parland-Newhall Company Appears as the Last Attraction

FIRST PAYING SEASON

Saving the best with the last the Citizens' Entertainment course closed its season last night by the appearance of the Parland-Newhall company, composed of a male quartet of singers, bell ringers and musicians extraordinary. The quartet furnished a most pleasing and varied program, and although it was their second appearance here, the concert was highly or more enjoyed than at the first appearance. The program consisted of male quartet selections, bell ringing, vocal solos, brass instrument, solos and quartets and violin solos. The male quartet work was the best that has ever been heard in Charleroi, the rich quality of the voices blending in the most perfect harmony in all selection. The quartet could not be surpassed in their bell ringing ability, and their work on the brass instruments was so far above the usual attempts of the kind heard here that there could be no comparison.

The vocal solos were equally enjoyed with the rest of the program, while the violin selections were of exceptional merit.

The course just closed is one of the few given in Charleroi where the receipts overtop the expenditures.

Much Wanted Man Arrested Near State Line

HEARING ON THURSDAY

Information Entered Before Alderman Ellwood at Monongahela

Ed. Walters, a former Marianna man, was arrested near the State line of Pennsylvania and Ohio last night and this morning brought to Monongahela by Constable J. C. Simpson of Marianna and P. R. R. Detective J. R. Chalfant. He is now being held pending a hearing to be held before Alderman Day at Monongahela on Thursday morning on a charge of burglarizing cars at Marianna. Later he will be taken to Marianna to be given a hearing on the charge of horse stealing preferred before Justice of the Peace A. J. Martin.

Walters apparently is a bad man from away back. The horse was supposed to have been stolen last December from G. G. Henderson of Beallsville being taken from near the Marianna Hotel. The horse was later found, but the buggy had been smashed.

In addition to the horse stealing Walters is alleged to have stolen from cars on the Marianna siding, the value of the articles taken amounting to considerable and ranging from ladies' underware to eggs and butter. All the stuff was consigned to Marianna merchants. Walters is said to have disposed of the goods through others. Fred Elwanger, who has been held for court already on a charge of receiving stolen goods, is alleged to be one of them.

CHARLEROI GIRL IN BETHANY RECITAL

Miss Mary Chester, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. T. Chester of Crest avenue, was one of a number of students at Bethany College who appeared in a recital given by the students of the department of expression there on Thursday evening last. Miss Chester, although a new student in this department, has won much commendation for her quick power of interpretation. She read Bell Marshall Lock's monologue "Because She Loved Him So," in a manner which was quite pleasing. Miss Lulu McCausland is in charge of the expression department this year.

Miners Refuse to Obey

The strike called in sympathy with the strike in the Tuscarawas district in Ohio included the mines of the Youghiogheny and Ohio Coal company at Manifold in this county. The miners at the latter place, however, refused to obey the order as it was made by T. L. Lewis, who is at loggerheads with District President Francis Feehan. The strike was to have taken place Saturday.

Give Us the Road

It is to be hoped that the mission of the delegation from this community that goes to Washington today in the interest of the road extension between here and Bentleyville will not be fruitless. The imporvement of the connecting link between two important and populous communities was early seen and recognized, and in the plan for highway improvement devised in the county six years ago, crude and impolitic as it was at the time, this section was included. More than that, it was railroaded through and approved by the grand jury, and ever since has been in line at the option of the county commissioners for improvement.

Just why it has been relegated to the rear and the preference given to other roads of less importance is not clearly known. The people over this way have a right to know why they have been discriminated against, and it is to be presumed this delegation that visits the county seat today will seek this information. They should not be content with vague promises of consideration, and the Charleroi Business Men's Association should make this improvement an issue. It has been relegated to the rear for six years, and our "turn" is in justice due.

What They Did in Kansas

The Kansas Legislature has completed its business and adjourned sine die. It was the most progressive Legislature Kansas has had in many years, and more really worth-while laws were put into the statutes than Kansas has had in thirty years. Among the more important measures enacted are the following:

Creating a public utilities commission, with power to control all local and State wide public service corporations, prohibit issue of stocks and bonds where valuation would be unduly increased, and to prevent sales or transfers which would tend to create a monopoly in any city. Providing the Oregon plan for popular election of United States Senators and demanded that Congress submit a constitutional amendment to do this.

Submitting constitutional amendment to permit women to vote.

Passed a working men's compensation law. Kansas and New York are now the only States which have compensation laws.

Requiring that agriculture be taught in all schools.

Requiring all country schools to hold seven months school each year, and appropriating $150,000 to help weak school districts.

Providing for pensions of one-half average pay to school teachers, who have taught thirty years.

Abolishing all boards of education elected by city wards, putting all city schools under a commission of six members elected from city at large.

Establishing a sanatorium for tuberculosis patients.

Permitting townships in rural communities to establish township high schools of equal standing with city high schools.

Applying the Federal employers' liability law to Kansas mines and railroads.

New road laws which will permit building of real good roads throughout the State under the supervision of State highway engineer.

Making a second violation of the prohibitory law an offense punishable by one year in prison at hard labor.

Prohibiting the publication of unsigned political advertisements.

A vital statistics law requiring the registration of births, deaths, causes of death and reports on contagious diseases.

ELECTRIC SPARKS

Even people who don't usually object of being conspicuous have serious objection to being forced to become so.

Moving day is about as an enjoyable an event as listening to the boy next door on the Fourth of July.

Teddy Roosevelt can get dams said for him but the best most other people can do is to get dams said at them.

It rather appears to us that from the number of chicken farms being started there ought be a decrease in the price of eggs still further, as well as a decrease in the prices of poultry.

It's nice to be good. The greatest trouble is that "all good die young."

Thoughts never lack words. It is words that lack thoughts.

"Do you and your wife agree?"
"Oh, yes, at least I do."

It's always suspicious looking when a man begins to run, unless there is a street car or train coming in view.

PICKED UP IN PASSING

"Is that to inform the public that you're not mind readers?" asked a patron of Chief Clerk William McFall the Charleroi postoffice yesterday of pointing to the sign "Talk," which in prominent letters was placarded over the stamp and delivery windows of the office.

"That's it exactly," replied Mr. McFall. "Nearly every one who buys stamps seems to infer that we known exactly what they want, and we have to invariably ask what is desired. For instance, a woman shoves two cents through the window and says nothing. The inference is that she wants a two-cent stamp, and one is shoved back in exchange. That inference is more likely to be wrong than right, as the woman will display a couple of post cards and snap out:

"'I want two ones.'

"If you ask her what she wants, the answer is as likely as not to be in withering tones:

"'Why, a two-cent stamp, of course.'

"This is all the more complicated when a patron shoves a nickel, a dime or even a dollar at you and awaits your initiative in asking what he wants. Therefore, the sign "Talk" is put up as a gentle reminder to the public that the office force here is not in the Madam Clifford class able to read the thoughts of any person who shoves money through the stamp window."

A story comes from Sharon to the effect that over in Hickory township, Mercer county, lives an honest German citizen named Adolph Fox, who derives a good revenue selling doughnuts to the children of a school near his residence. Recently when the dicusssion about the high cost of living waged the fiercest, and everybody was talking about the increase in the cost of provisions and the necessity for retrenchment, Fox became so impressed that he began to consider how he could cut down his expenses in the doughnut trade and increase his profits.

He pondered long and seriously, and finally came to the conclusion that the only thing to do was to increase the size of the hole in the doughnuts So, instead of cutting them out with a large and small biscuit cutter, as heretofore, he cut the dough in long strips and twisted them together. He suceeded in getting a larger hole in the doughnuts all right, but the children discovered they were getting larger doughnuts for the same money, and the German's trade increased accordingly.

Seeing that he was losing money, Fox sought the advice of a neighbor. After he had explained his device for cutting down expenses and its failure to work, the neighbor said:

"But don't you see that by increasing the size of the hole in the doughnut it takes more dough to goaround?"

"Py jimminy, dot's so," exclaimed the German toughtfully scratching his head, "I tink I go back to der old style."

CATARRAH MUST GO

Good Way to Use Hyomei and Quickly Get Cured

Besides breathing Hyomei through the inhaler a few times a day try this for quick relief and cure, especially for stubborn cases.

Into a bowl three quarters full of boiling water pour a teaspoonful of Hyomei. Cover head and bowl with a towel and breathe the pleasant, healing antiseptic vapor that arises.

It's wonderful how quickly this method clears the stuffed up head and relieves the distress caused by catarrh. A bottle of Hyomei for 50 cents, a complete outfit including hard rubber pocket inhaler $1.00. Guaanteed by Piper Bros. to cure catarah, sore throat, asthma, croup, coughs and colds or money back.

A WOMAN'S INFLUENCE.

Effect It Produced on Her Husband's Business Affairs.

A delegation of young men lately waited on their employer's wife with the oddest request on record. "You see, madam," said the spokesman, "we want to have a half holiday every Saturday. Now, if you will be particularly nice to Mr Page for a few days we'll go to him and ask"—

"Gentlemen," the lady haughtily interrupted, "do you imply that I do not understand what is due to my husband?"

"Oh, I know all about it, madam," the spokesman went on. "I'm married myself. Things go wrong in the house and you're tired and cross at breakfast. Then we suffer at the office. You stay up late to chaperon your daughter at a ball, and we have more trouble at the office. You're a bit cross three mornings in succession for one reason or another, and we have a—a—terrible time at the office.

"You see how the matter stands and how greatly you will oblige us by being more than usually agreeable to Mr. Page for three or four days. The fourth day give him the best breakfast you can—everything that he likes best—and we'll get what we want in three minutes.

"Talk about a woman having no influence in the business! Why, the humor she's in has more effect than a bank failure or a boom in trade."

She thougbt she ought to be angry but instead she laughed and agreed to the proposition, and four days later when they waited on the head of the firm he made the closing hour 12 o'clock and said never in the history of the firm had things run as satisfactorily as they had during the last four days.—London Tit-Bits.

Genuine benevolence is not stationary, but peripatetic. It goes about doing good.—Nevins.

How Gold Plate Is Made.

Talking of silver gilt plate, it is often spoken of as gold plate. One hears of the gold service at Windsor castle, of the gold plate owned by sovereigns of Europe and by other persons in this country as well as abroad. As a matter of fact, these so called gold services are silver gilt, and only a few pieces of pure gold are owned by the English crown or any other crown. It may interest our readers to learn how this fire, mercurial or water gilding—for it is known by all of these three names—is done. Pure gold and mercury are mixed into a paste. The silver article to be gilded has been chemically cleaned, is rubbed all over with this paste, which has been placed in a silk bag, just as the blue used in washing is put in a bag. When the piece of plate has been rubbed over it is perfectly white. It is then put into an oven, and gradually the mercury goes off in fumes, leaving on the article a deposit of pure gold, which has practically become one with the piece of silver and will last for centuries.—London Cor. New York Post.

The Spider Cure.

The request for a "nut to put a spider in to cure baby's whooping cough" which recently startled a Somerset shopkeeper recalls the spider "cures" of the past. There was, and indeed is, for instance, that Irish belief in the web as a remedy for cuts, warts and bruises and that superstitition of the eastern counties which credited it with power to cure fevers. The weaver of the web, too, was looked upon as a doctor of medicine.

A note from an ancient Notes and Queries gives the illustration. "One of my parishioners suffering from ague," wrote a Somerset vicar, "was advised to catch a large spider and shut him up in a box. As he pines away the disease is supposed to wear itself out." A similar belief prevailed in the south of Ireland, but there treacle had to be substituted for the box as coffin for the ague healer.—Westminster Gazette

The Doctor's Joke.

A physician who never goes out at night without leaving directions as to where to find him if wanted professionally was at a theater near Forty-second street recently with a friend. Just before the curtain went up on the second act an usher handed him a note reading: "Come to the office at once. Don't telephone. Come." The note was signed by a colleague, and the doctor lost no time in obeying the peremptory summons. Arriving at his destination, he was confronted by several friends, who coolly explained that he had been used to decide a bet as to the length of time it would take to cover the distance which he had traversed. The victim's anger was only slightly appeased when he was assured that the perpetrators of the joke knew no one else who was good natured enough to furnish the information looked for.—New York Tribune.

Putting the Owl to Use.

There is a choice old recipe, in which the owl figures, "to make any one that sleepeth answer to whatsoever thou ask," given in "Physick For the Poor," published in London in 1657. It says that you are to "take the heart of an owl and his left leg and put that upon the breast of one that sleepeth, and they shall reveal whatsoever thou shalt ask them."

The Hindus, however, declare that the flesh or blood of an owl will make a person insane who eats or drinks it. On this account men who are devoured by jealousy of a rival or hatred of an enemy come furtively to the market and purchase an owl. In silence they carry it home and secretly prepare a decoction, which an accomplice will put into the food or drink of the object of their malignant designs.

Wanted a Supply.

"Politics," remarked a Washington official, "is a science as well as a circus. One of the funniest things I ever heard in that connection was about the cowboy delegate to the constitutional convention of Nevada when that territory was about to become a state In the constitution was the stereotyped paragraph about the new state's having two senators to represent it in Washington. When it was read to the convention the cowboy delegate rose and yelled out: 'What's the use of limiting it to two? We're overwhelmingly Republican, and we can elect as many as we want.'"—Washington Star.

The Demons.

"Critics are fine chaps," said an English actor, "but I must confess that when they condemn your play you feel annoyed.

"'I wonder why we call the people in the top of the house gods?' an actress asked an unsuccessful playwright once.

"'We do that,' the unsuccessful playwright answered, 'so as to distinguish them from the people in the bottom of the house who write the criticisms.'"

It Depends.

An actor and a retired army man were discussing the perils of their respective callings.

"How would you like to stand with shells bursting all round you?" the general demanded.

"Well," replied the actor, "it depends on the age of the egg."

Poor Venice.

Friend—And were you ever in Venice? Mr. Richquick—Yes Slowest town I was ever in. The sewers were busted all the time we were there!—Puck.

A Warm Welcome.

Sapleigh—Are you positive that Miss Outter is not in? The Maid—Yes, sir I'd lose my job if I wasn't.—Boston Transcript.

Delhi and Its History.

Shah Jehan in 1631 built the present city of Delhi, close to the old Delhi, and made it the royal residence. The Mohammedans still call it Shahjehanabad, the "city of the king of the world." Nadir Shah, the Persian usurper, captured it in 1739, massacred thousands of the inhabitants and bore away plunder to the value of nearly $100,000,000, including the famous peacock throne and the great Kohinoor diamond. The British first came into control in 1803, when the Mahrattas were defeated near Delhi by Lord Lake. When the sepoy mutiny broke out in 1857 Shah Mohammed Bahadour, then ninety years old, took command of the city and until the English again triumphed enjoyed the imperial state to which he had long been a stranger.

Harriman Told Him.

Harriman had an almost supernatural instinct for knowing what was going on and who was doing it in the mysteries of stock manipulation. Once when Southern Pacific had been going up fast, Harriman and various banking houses buying in concert, he called up on the telephone one of his private brokers. "Somebody is selling," he said. "Yes, sir," was the answer. "Well, hand the market 25,000 for me." Immediately he called up the head of a banking firm much interested in the market. "Who's selling Southern Pacific?" he asked. "I don't know; we haven't been able to find out," was the answer. "I'll tell you," snapped Harriman; "it's your house." And he cut off the connection before any reply to him could be made.—Exchange.

HONORED THE MONKEY.

Origin of the Coat of Arms of the Earl of Leinster.

Most of the wild animals have a place in heraldry, and many strange and impossible creatures, such as griffins, dragons and unicorns, have been invented as emblems of daring and valor. But the donkey and the monkey have not been so used, except in one instance, where the monkey has been admitted to the ranks of titled nobility. The story of this adoption is told by Mr. Curtis in his book, "One Irish Summer."

On the Leinster coat of arms are three monkeys standing with plain collar and chained; motto, "Crom a-boo," "To Victory." This is the only coat of arms, I am told, that has ever borne a monkey in the design. It was adopted by John Fitzthomas Fitzgerald in 1316 for romantic reasons.

While this Earl of Leinster was an infant he was in the castle of Woodstock, which is now owned by the Duke of Marlborough. The castle caught fire, in the confusion the child was forgotten, and when the family and servants remembered him and started a search they found the nursery in ruins. But on one of the towers was a gigantic ape, a pet of the family, carefully holding the young earl in his arms. The animal, with extraordinary intelligence, had crawled through the smoke, rescued the baby and carried it to the top of the tower.

When the earl had grown to manhood he discarded the family coat of arms and adopted the monkeys for his crest, and they have been retained to this day. Wherever you find the tomb of a Fitzgerald you will see the monkeys at the feet of the effigy or under the inscription.

SPENDTHRIFT ISABELLA.

A Sight That Checked Her Royal Extravagance For Awhile.

We are accustomed to think that the day is long past when a sovereign could oppress and offend a whole kingdom by personal extravagance. But the late Isabella of Spain belonged in spirit to the sixteenth century. An incident of her reckless career—which ended in the loss of the throne—is noted in Munsey's Magazine.

She spent money, pouring it out like water, at a time when the treasury was nearly bankrupt and when the proverb "Poor as a Spaniard" was far too true. All her best advisers urged her to practice economy. Very few of them succeeded, and these only for a short time.

A certain chamberlain of hers once hit upon a plan to make her realize how enormous were the sums that she was spending. Passing through the hall of the palace, she was surprised to see a vast heap of silver pieces, resembling the contents of a great bin of wheat, but piled up in the middle of the floor. The queen summoned her chamberlain.

"What is the meaning of all this money?" she demanded of him.

"Oh," he replied, with a low bow, "this is merely the amount which I have brought out to pay the bill of your majesty's glovemaker."

The queen colored and then laughed, and for several months she was less extravagant in her expenditures for clothes.

E Pluribus Unum.

The country is indebted to John Adams for its national motto, with an Englishman of note sharing in the honor. It seems that while Adams was minister to England Sir John Prestwick, an eminent English antiquary, suggested to him a good motto to represent the union of the American colonies. Adams at once was taken with the idea, which he transmitted to Charles Thompson, the secretary of congress, who on June 20, 1782, reported to that body his design for a government seal. In this the Latin legend "E Pluribus Unum" was to be borne on a ribbon held in the beak of an eagle.

Just where Sir John got the idea is not certain, but it is a fact that the motto was in use on the cover of the Gentleman's Magazine, first published in 1730, and it may have struck his fancy by its applicability to the situation then obtaining in America.

New Zealand's Glaciers.

The great size of the glaciers around Mount Cook, in New Zealand, has been often remarked. The Tasman is eighteen miles long, the Murchison ten miles, the Godley eight miles, the Mueller eight miles and the Hooker seven miles. Most of these glaciers have moraines of exceeding roughness, but the approaches to them are not steep, as is usually the case with European glaciers. The southern Alpine snow line is only a little over 7,000 feet. Glacially polished rocks are rare, and in many ways the mountains are singularly different from those of central Europe.

"I was just telling our friend here, Molly, that it was storming on the day of our marriage."

"Surely not, Hiram! The weather was perfectly lovely!"

"Well, well! I don't know how I got so mixed up about it; probably because it's been storming ever since!"—Atlanta Constitution.

A Fish Story.

"There are as good fish in the sea as were ever taken out of it," remarked Small to Young, who had been refused by Moneybag's daughter.

"Yes, I know. But they are not goldfish."

Circumstances are the rulers of the weak. They are but the instruments of the wise.—Samuel Lover.

RIDING THE BUZZARD.

The Ricebird Uses His Bulky Enemy as an Aeroplane.

People generally associate size and brute strength with victory, especially among the lower animals. Many times, however, this is far from being the case, especially in the bird kingdom. Among the rice flats of the Carolinas there abound at some seasons of the year tiny ricebirds, birds so small that it takes two dozen for a good meal, though bones and all are eaten.

The great buzzard is found circling over the flats at all seasons. He dreads the time for the ricebird to come, for he is then nearly pestered to death. It is a common sight to see one of these little birds fly up to a buzzard and, after dodging this way and that round the awkward bulk, finally alight well forward between the buzzard's wings on the back. Here the tiny passenger grabs a few feathers in his beak and holds on for grim life. After enjoying a ride for as long as he desires the little fellow hops off and is gone before Mr. Buzzard is well aware of it.

The peculiar part of the whole thing is that apparently the only purpose the ricebird has in getting on the back of the buzzard is to take a free ride. It puzzles every one who chances to see the little drama to find any other reason, yet the fact remains that it is a frequent occurrence, and the little birds seem to enjoy it immensely.—New York Tribune.

INDIAN DEATH CUSTOMS.

Graves of the Hopi and the Hogans of the Navajos.

The Hopi Indian believes that the souls of all deceased adults go to the Grand canyon. When a man dies a grave is dug. The nearest relative of the deceased carries the body to the grave, places it in a sitting posture facing the Grand canyon, erects a long pole between the legs, locks the dead man's fingers around it and fills the grave. To the top of the pole, protruding above the ground, he ties one end of a string and leads the other end in the direction of the Grand canyon. At the end of four days it is believed the soul leaves the body, climbs the pole and with the string to guide it goes to its eternal home in the canyon.

The Navajos, on the contrary, are very superstitious about handling dead bodies. They believe that the evil spirit that kills the person hovers around the hogan, as they call their lodge, awaiting other victims, and a hogan in which a death occurs is never occupied again. Navajo hogans are always built with the entrance facing the east. When a death occurs in one of them an opening is invariably made in the north side. Therefore when one sees a hogan with the north side knocked out he may be certain some one has died in it.—Dillon Wallace in Outing.

Antiquity of the Dog.

It is impossible to say when dogs were first domesticated, but some of the earliest traces are found on Egyptian monuments, with figures of dogs somewhat of the greyhound type, which date back to at least 3700 B. C. Even in those remote days the dog was highly esteemed. Coming down a little later, we read that Ulysses 3,000 years ago was recognized by his dog Argus after his swineherd had failed to do so.

Plutarch speaks of Alcibades, who cut off the tail of his dog, and Myron, the sculptor, immortalized the animal by chiseling his image in marble. The Romans valued their dogs and kept them from the chase and also as pets. Alexander the Great owned a veteran fit to tackle a lion.

A Bibulous Goose.

Geese will live to a great age, and some few years ago I came across a very venerable goose (male or female I cannot now say) in Westmoreland in unexpected circumstances. I was walking from Milnthorpe to Arnside and at Ganaside found an acquaintance sitting on a seashore bench feeding a pet goose with biscuits steeped in ale. He told me that this goose had been in his family for over forty years and was partial to beer, stout and even gin.

Rev. James Hall, M. A., told of a goose in Stirlingshire, Scotland, that had been killed by accident after living at the same place for "above eighty years."—London Field.

Skating on a Tennis Court.

When one is building a tennis court provision may easily be made for a rink by excavating from six inches to one foot deeper than the surrounding ground and making this depressed area as much greater than his court as his purse or surroundings will permit. Twenty-five feet in the clear outside the lines of the court will give an area of over 11,000 square feet—an ample space for a number of people to occupy without crowding. The court may be flooded by means of a hose attached to the house faucet, first saturating the ground and then when it has frozen flooding the court.—Suburban Life.

Deafness of Blue Eyed White Cats.

All white cats are not deaf, but most blue eyed white cats are. It has never been discovered why the blue eyed cats should have the tendency to deafness, but it is a fact, while there has never been a case known of a yellow eyed or green eyed white cat being deaf unless by accident.—St. Nicholas.

Duty.

Duty stands for the most part close at hand, unobscured, simple, immediate. If any man has the will to hear her voice, to him is she willing to enter and be his ready guest.—Francis Peabody.

Genuine Sardines.

Genuine sardines are the young of the pilchard. Their name comes from the fact that they are most numerous off the coast of Sardinia. They swim in the spring in shoals containing millions—fish shaped shoals ten miles long and a half mile wide. The sardines are netted and taken at once to the shore. There they are washed, scraped and sprinkled with salt. The salt is soon removed, the heads and gills cut off and there is another washing. Then, on beds of green brush, the fish are dried in the sun. Next they are boiled in olive oil till cooked thoroughly. The packers—women always—take them now and pack them in the tin boxes we all know, filling up each box with boiling oil, fitting on the lid and making the box air tight by soldering the joints together with a jet of hot steam. Sardines are more or less perfect according as they are prepared more or less immediately after their capture and according as the oil they are packed in is more or less pure.

The Young French Girl.

A young French girl enters the theater with her father. She takes her seat directly in front of the privileged American girls "finishing" their education. Her untouched flowerlike face is alight with anticipated pleasure, with a soft vividness of intelligence that could never be cursed with the word "brainy." Her hair is bound with a little old fashioned snood and tiny buckle; a strangely simple evening dress covers the exquisite ardor of her slender body. Quickly four faces, the faces of the overindulged, the overprecocious, the overathletic and the overdressed, turn to study her. There is something to learn in this little French maid, whose eyes never meet a man's, who is never allowed to walk alone on the street, whose unconscious grace envelops her like a veil, who is sheltered like a delicate bird, yet trained to the utmost energy, reserve, accomplishment and usefulness.—Atlantic.

Wall Street Superstition.

Almost all the Wall street speculators are superstitious fellows who believe in charms and amulets. In their pockets they carry lucky coins, a rabbit's foot, a horse chestnut or something of the kind. One Wall street man, much envied by his companions, has a short piece of a hangman's rope to conjure with. Many of the customers in the offices are even more credulous than the professional traders in their belief in signs and omens. There is a deep seated tradition that Tuesday is "low day" in a "bull market" and "high day" in a "bear market." Some persons speculate on "systems," and others employ "charts." Once they exploited a machine in Wall street known as a "market register." It was about as effective as helping anybody to win at Stock Exchange speculation as it is to rub up against a hunchback for luck just before you bet on a horse race.—Munsey's Magazine.

He Got Valuable Information.

The story is told of the times of Aretas Blood and the old Manchester locomotive works that a student came to Mr. Blood once and wanted to study the business of locomotive building in his vacation days. The student came well recommended, and Mr. Blood, who never had much use for these "tech" people, sent him down to the boiler shop and placed him in charge of the old foreman. The old man took the "tech" man around, and in the course of the inspection of the shop they came across one boiler on the inside of which was a man at work.

"How does that man get out?" inquired the "tech" man.

"Oh," said the venerable pilot, "he doesn't get out. We always count upon losing at least one man in building a boiler."—Manchester Union.

Napoleon Obeyed the Mob.

In "The Corsican—A Diary of Napoleon's Life In His Own Words," Bonaparte tells how, as an obscure soldier, he witnessed some of the opening scenes of the revolution: "I lodged Rue du Mail, Place des Victories. At the sound of the tocsin and at the news that the Tuileries were attacked I started for the Carousel. Before I had got there in the Rue des Petits Champs I was passed by a mob of horrible looking fellows parading a head stuck on a pike. Thinking I looked too much of a gentleman, they wanted me to shout 'Vive la nation!' which I did promptly, as may easily be imagined."

When a Great Man Dies.

There can be but austere and serious thoughts in all hearts when a sublime spirit makes its majestic entrance into another life, when one of those beings who have long soared above the crowd on the visible wings of genius, spreading all at once other wings which we did not see, plunges swiftly into the unknown.—From Hugo's Funeral Oration on Balzac.

The Change.

"Yes, and now he complains because he never wants what he gets to eat."—Catholic Standard and Times.

TRIED TO BE NICE.

But Fannie Made an Awful Mess of It With the Old Lady.

"When Fannie is bent upon pleasing," sighed Fannie's younger sister, "she can certainly make a horrible mess of things. Last Sunday Charlie Evans having arrived at the point where he felt he wanted his family's opinion of me, invited us both up to take tea with his mother. The minute I laid eyes on his mother I knew Fannie would get in trouble—she simply can't help getting nervously foolish when there's a religious person around.

"Charlie's mother kissed us and, addressing herself to Fannie as the elder said something about our being very sweet to come and see a daughterless old woman. Whereat Fannie looked at Charlie and his two brothers and replied feelingly that it must be a terrible disappointment to have only them. Mrs. Evans, to rectify my sister's misapprehension, told us proudly that she had three more sons, not present.

"By this time Fannie realized that she had made a bad beginning and leaped further in with the supposition that the other three were off having a good time instead of moping at home. The older lady drew herself up and said severely:

"'My three sons are in heaven, Miss Barnes.'

"'Oh, how awful!' came Fannie's ready gasp.

"'No, not awful at all!' and Mrs. Evans was positively glaring at us. 'I feel that they were specially blessed in being allowed to pass thus early to their Lord. They died as little children.'

"'Dear me, how glad you must have been!' blurted out flustered Fannie.

"By this time I had kicked a hole in the ankle, and that quieted her for awhile. She might have kept still for the rest of the evening had not her pet subject, the higher education of woman, come up for the old lady's disapproval. Then Fannie made a handspring into the conversation by remarking that when we had more educated mothers there would be less infant mortality.

"And, mind you, Fannie was really trying to be nice for my sake."—New York Times.

TRAINING SEALS.

These Dexterous Animals Easily Taught to Perform Tricks.

"The cardinal principle in training animals," says an animal trainer, "is not to attempt to make an animal do anything contrary to the nature of its particular species. To be successful a trainer must know enough about the habits of the animals he has under training to fit the tricks he would teach them to their natural bent.

"The seal is very easily taught. You begin with one seal, some small pieces of fish and a string. You let the seal sit on his pedestal, something he likes to do by nature; then you throw him one of the pieces of fish, and he naturally and easily catches it. Next you tie a piece of fish on the end of your string and swing it toward the seal. He catches this, too, and you keep moving away from him and swinging the fish to him from an increasing distance. Now you are ready to begin with the hat or cornucopia. You put a piece of fish in the bottom of it and toss it to the seal. The seal is dexterous by nature and his nose, quickly detecting the fish in the tip of the cone, seeks it out. The cone catches on his snout, and he bites out the fish and tosses the cone aside. Before long he comes to associate the cone with fish, and he will catch any number of similar ones and toss them aside when he fails to find what he wants.

"Balancing the big rubber ball is based on the same principle. The ball is soaked in fishy brine and thrown to the seal. He gets the odor and tries his best to get into the ball and find what he is after. This results in his balancing the ball on his nose, a feat to which his supple neck and his natural feeding habits are all adapted, and then he gets his piece of fish as a prize."—New York World.

History In Toys.

The history of the world is crystallized in the children's toys. Each great war leaves soldiers in the nursery cupboard dressed correctly to a strap and button. This has always been so. As each successive age in the world's history has gone by the weapons of that age have passed to the hands of the boys as toys. There are in our great museums miniature crossbows, spears and shields. Toy armor as finely inlaid and engraved as any real accouterments is occasionally to be seen, and old prints show the boys playing with such figures. Even the children of the French revolution had their toy guillotines.—Collier's.

Sickly Children
Letters from Mothers

"I wish I could induce every mother, who has a delicate, sickly child, to try your delicious Cod Liver and Iron Tonic VINOL. It restored our little daughter to health and strength after everything else had failed."—Mrs. C. W. Stump, Canton, Ohio.

Mrs. F. P. Skonnard, of Minneapolis, Minn., writes, "I want to recommend VINOL to every mother who has a weak or sickly child. My little boy was sickly, pale, and had no appetite for two years. I tried different medicines and doctors without benefit, but thanks to VINOL, he is a well and healthy boy to-day."

C. Allen, of New Bedford, Mass., writes, "My two puny children gained rapidly in flesh and strength in a very short time after taking VINOL."

We positively know VINOL will build up little ones and make them healthy, strong and robust. Try one bottle, and if you are not satisfied, we will return your money.

LIQUID CURES ECZEMA
WHERE SALVE FAILS

In regard to skin diseases medical authorities are now agreed on this:

Don't imprison the disease germs in your skin by the use of greasy salves, and thus encourage them to multiply. A true cure of all eczematous diseases can be brought about only by using the healing agents in the form of a liquid.

WASH THE GERMS OUT. A simple wash: A compound of Oil of Wintergreen, Thymol, and other ingredients as combined in the D. D. D. Prescription, penetrates to the disease germs and destroys it, then soothes and heals the skin as nothing else has ever done.

A 25-cent trial bottle will start the cure and give you instant relief.

DO YOU know of anyone who is old enough to read, who has not seen that sign at a railroad crossing?

If everyone has seen it at some time or other, then why doesn't the railroad let the sign rot away? Why does the railroad company continue to keep those signs at every crossing?

Maybe you think, Mr. Merchant, "Most everybody knows my store, I don't have to advertise."

Your store and your goods need more advertising than the railroads need do to warn people to "Look Out for the Cars."

A Buttered Book.

How the Rev. Mr. Johnston, a Scottish minister and the author of numerous books, succeeded in getting one of his works reviewed by Alexander Russel, the distinguished editor of the Scotsman, is told by the writer of "Famous Editors."

A member of Mr. Johnston's congregation was an old and valued servant in Mr. Russel's family. When the preacher published his new book he asked this member to bring it under the notice of her master, with the request to review it in the columns of the Scotsman. Glad to be of service to her master, the good woman lost no time in making her wish known to the celebrated editor and next morning placed "The Gospel Roll" beside his breakfast cup.

When at breakfast Mr. Russel took up the book and remarked, with a merry twinkle in his eye, "Helen, this is an awful dry roll which you have given me this morning."

"Perhaps it is, sir," the servant quickly replied, "but you can butter it weel on both sides."

Next morning an excellent review appeared.

Conkling and Thurman.

Senator Roscoe Conkling was once addressing the senate in an impassioned manner and seemed to direct his remarks to Senator Thurman. At length the latter got irritated.

"Does the senator from New York," he roared, "expect me to answer him every time he turns to me?"

For a moment Mr. Conkling hesitated, and everybody expected a terrific explosion. Then, with an air of exquisite courtesy, he replied:

"When I speak of the law I turn to the senator from Ohio as the Mussulman turns toward Mecca. I turn to him as I do to the English common law as the world's most copious fountain of human jurisprudence."

The usually decorous senate broke into a storm of applause, and the Thurman eye moistened a little. The two statesmen were the best of friends and greatly enjoyed each other's society when "off duty."

Always.

JUDGE UMBEL MUST GIVE ALL DETAILS

Supreme Court Requires Former Fayette Jurist to Make Campaign Audit

A decision has been filed in the Supreme Court at Philadelphia affirming the Superior Court, which decided that Judge Robert E. Umbel of Fayette county must detail campaign expenses.

This ruling sustains the corrupt practices act, which requires an audit of a candidate's political expenses.

The required number of citizens of Fayette county filed a petition, alleging that his account did not give his expenses in detail, as required by law, and that they were informed large sums of money had been expended contrary to law to get the nomination.

The quarter sessions court of Fayette county ruled that a candidate need not designate specially by whom or for what purpose money used in the campaign was spent.

The Superior Court reversed this decision, and sent the case back for rehearing. The Supreme Court upheld the ruling.

HE WAS NOT A FLIRT.

Therefore He Resented the Woman's Attempts at Familiarity.

He was riding homeward, comfortably seated and reading his paper. Being a trifle nearsighted, he was applying himself even more closely to his paper than other homegoing passengers. Thus intent in the day's news, he was startled when a woman came up beside him and touched him lightly on the shoulder, at the same time casting a longing eye on his seat.

He is a polite man, and he got up. "A woman with that much nerve is entitled to a seat," he muttered to himself. "The idea of a woman deliberately nudging a man out of his seat!" Other women standing near by laughed unreservedly. He hid his embarrassment behind his paper, for he felt that his good nature had been imposed upon and that the laugh was on him.

By and by there was a vacant seat next to the one he had given up to the woman, and he sat down once more. The woman turned and looked at him amusedly. He could feel her gaze, even though he made a bluff at being intensely interested in his paper. Pretty raw, it seemed to him, for a woman deliberately to take the seat of a total stranger and then sit there and laugh at him because he was such a mark.

Then the woman spoke to him. "Aren't you going to talk to me?" she asked.

He could stand her familiarity no longer. "Well, of all the"— He stopped right there when he looked around and recognized her. It was his wife!—Cleveland Leader.

Invisible Indians.

All Indians seem to have learned a wonderful way of walking unseen, making themselves invisible like certain spiders, which, in case of alarm, caused, for example, by a bird alighting on the bush their webs are spread upon, immediately bounce themselves up and down on their elastic threads so rapidly that only a blur is visible. The wild Indian power of escaping observation, even where there is little or no cover to hide in, was probably slowly acquired in hard hunting and fighting lessons while trying to approach game, take enemies by surprise or get safely away when compelled to retreat. And this experience transmitted through many generations seems at length to have become what is vaguely called instinct.—John Muir in Atlantic.

A Lightning Change Artist.

The rapidity with which chameleons change their color is marvelous. You gather one from an outdoor shrub and it immediately becomes dark, almost black, hissing and with its mouth wide open, threatening to bite. Meanwhile it is never still, but continues to crawl upward whenever possible—up you, up your sleeve, always upward. By degrees the angry black changes into whatever color is nearest. If one's dress is of a brownish color so is the chameleon's.

The Simple Maid.

'Twas in a simple country town, and the maid of all work was simple and innocent in sympathy. When she returned from shopping half a sovereign short in her change Mrs. Mango-Chutney was naturally incensed.

"Go back to each shop, you careless girl," she told the weeping maid, "and tell them you are half a sovereign short in your money and they must give it you."

Susan went and was back again in half an hour. Entering her mistress' sanctum, she laid five half sovereigns on the table before her. Faithful as always, she had carried out Mrs. Mango-Chutney's instructions to the letter, and each shopkeeper, fearful of doing wrong and hurting a fellow creature, had thrust the missing coin upon the bewildered girl.—London Answers.

The Offending Black Bottle.

A church member in a lonely district of Saskatchewan absented himself from services for some months. On being approached on the subject he said he was sorry, but it was impossible to attend any more. He was pressed to give reasons and at length said it was owing to the bad conduct of the superintending clergyman and catechist.

He and others had witnessed them drinking when driving round on their visits. They had passed a black bottle from hand to hand. It was impossible to attend the ministry of such men. Inquiries proved that the offending "bottle" was a pair of field-glasses with which the drivers surveyed the surrounding country and tried to locate the various churches, shacks and trails.—Sunday at Home.

HUNTERS ORGANIZE TO URGE PASSAGE OF BILL

Sportsmen Will Use Influence in This District

CIRCULATING PETITIONS

Will be Presented to the State Senate and House of Representatives

An organization of sportsmen of Charleroi was formed last night for the purpose of helping secure the passage of the proposed hunters' license law, now pending in the Legislature. The organization was formed at a meeting at the Bank of Charleroi, at which Kerfoot W. Daly was elected president and W. H. Reese secretary. Petitions will be circulated for signatures of hunters of the valley section, asking the Senate and House of Representatives to pass the bill. Petitions will be left at each of the three local banks, T. P. Grant's and D. R. Duvall's hardware stores, Joe Irone's barber shop and all the clubs. Besides this petitions will be sent to all towns along the valley between Monongahela and Brownsville.

Prothonotary H F. Ward of Washington attended the meeting and made a talk on the proposed license bill. The law proposed in Pennsylvania has been tried in other places and has been found to be very beneficial in many ways in the propogation of game and the protection to agriculturalists of annoyance arising from the irresponsible and heretofore irrespressible trespasser.

NO MORE DUNNING BY POSTAL CARDS

Gas, Electric and Water Companies Not Included in New Ruling

Electric light, gas and water companies may send bills by post card through the mails the same as usual, but other companies who resort to this method of dunning will run up against the law hereafter, according to a ruling which just went into effect last week.

Postmaster General Hitchcock issued an order notifying all postmasters to return to the sender any postal cards which mention debts. The department has no authority to exclude them from the mails, but can refuse to transmit them to their destination. By this new law, collecting agencies, which have heretofore reaped a rich harvest will be hard hit.

FOREIGNERS ARRESTED

Jacob Purilla and Kiril Sokel, Russians of the hill district in the vicinty of Eleventh street, are complainants in informations before Justice of the Peace E. E. Rice, charging Alex Zuroff, Kornilif Dargus, and Haril Novak with aggravated assault and battery with intent to kill. The informations were made as the outcome of a christening on Sunday, for which seven foreigners have been arrested by the police to be given a hearing before Burgess George W. Riebeck. The two complainants in the justice's information are pretty much battered up, and show that there was considerable livliness at the proceeding. The others interested in the proceedings beside the five mentioned are Ned Pavelbak and Joe Beraff.

BIDS SENT IN TO ENGINEER'S OFFICE FOR NEW STATION

Contract for Charleroi Edifice Will Likely be Awarded Soon by Pennsylvania Railroad

All bids on the proposed new Charleroi station were sent in to Division Engineer E. B. Wiseman's office today, and the contract will likely be let within a few days. Among the bidders is the Charleroi Lumber company.

Indications are that work will be started shortly after the letting of the contract upon the new station, in order that it may be finished this summer or fall. Division Engineer E. B. Wiseman will have supervision of the work.

Before work is begun the present station and baggage room will have to be moved. They will most likely be moved nearer the freight house, to give plenty of room for work.

J. K. Johnston and H. D. Mason Give Talks on Mining Questions

General Superintendent Jesse K. Johnston and Mining Engineer H. D. Mason, Jr., have just returned from State College, where they spoke at the annual banquet of the Mining Engineering Society. Over 300 of State's Mining School under graduates were present, and the singing of Penn State songs, led by the college orchestra, and the booming forth frequently of the good old college yell, rendered the occasion a most inspiring and enthusiastic one. During their stay at the college, Messrs. Johnston and Mason were entertained at the home of President E. E. Sparks and at he Kappa Signa fraternity house. The banquet was held at the Nitany Inn and the following toasts responded to:

"Our Mining Society," Dean W. R. Crane.

ENTERTAINMENT COURSE AT CLOSE

Parland-Newhall Company Appears as the Last Attraction

FIRST PAYING SEASON

Saving the best with the last the Citizens' Entertainment course closed its season last night by the appearance of the Parland-Newhall company, composed of a male quartet of singers, bell ringers and musicians extraordinary. The quartet furnished a most pleasing and varied program, and although it was their second appearance here, the concert was highly or more enjoyed than at the first appearance. The program consisted of male quartet selections, bell ringing, vocal solos, brass instrument, solos and quartets and violin solos. The male quartet work was the best that has ever been heard in Charleroi, the rich quality of the voices blending in the most perfect harmony in all selection. The quartet could not be surpassed in their bell ringing ability, and their work on the brass instruments was so far above the usual attempts of the kind heard here that there could be no comparison.

The vocal solos were equally enjoyed with the rest of the program, while the violin selections were of exceptional merit.

The course just closed is one of the few given in Charleroi where the receipts overtop the expenditures.

Much Wanted Man Arrested Near State Line

HEARING ON THURSDAY

Information Entered Before Alderman Ellwood at Monongahela

Ed. Walters, a former Marianna man, was arrested near the State line of Pennsylvania and Ohio last night and this morning brought to Monongahela by Constable J. C. Simpson of Marianna and P. R. R. Detective J. R. Chalfant. He is now being held pending a hearing to be held before Alderman Day at Monongahela on Thursday morning on a charge of burglarizing cars at Marianna. Later he will be taken to Marianna to be given a hearing on the charge of horse stealing preferred before Justice of the Peace A. J. Martin.

Walters apparently is a bad man from away back. The horse was supposed to have been stolen last December from G. G. Henderson of Beallsville being taken from near the Marianna Hotel. The horse was later found, but the buggy had been smashed.

In addition to the horse stealing Walters is alleged to have stolen from cars on the Marianna siding, the value of the articles taken amounting to consid. able and ranging from ladies' underware to eggs and butter. All the stuff was consigned to Marianna merchants. Walters is said to have disposed of the goods through others. Fred Elwanger, who has been held for court already on a charge of receiving stolen goods, is alleged to be one of them.

CHARLEROI GIRL IN BETHANY RECITAL

Miss Mary Chester, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. T. Chester of Crest avenue, was one of a number of students at Bethany College who appeared in a recital given by the students of the department of expression there on Thursday evening last. Miss Chester, although a new student in this department, has won much commendation for her quick power of interpretation. She read Bell Marshall Lock's monologue "Because She Loved Him So," in a manner which was quite pleasing. Miss Lulu McCausland is in charge of the expression department this year.

Miners Refuse to Obey

The strike called in sympathy with the strike in the Tuscarawas district in Ohio included the mines of the Youghiogheny and Ohio Coal company at Manifold in this county. The miners at the latter place, however, refused to obey the order as it was made by T. L. Lewis, who is at loggerheads with District President Francis Feehan. The strike was to have taken place Saturday.

Give Us the Road

It is to be hoped that the mission of the delegation from this community that goes to Washington today in the interest of the road extension between here and Bentleyville will not be fruitless. The improvement of the connecting link between two important and populous communities was early seen and recognized, and in the plan for highway improvement devised in the county six years ago, crude and impolitic as it was at the time, this section was included. More than that, it was railroaded through and approved by the grand jury, and ever since has been in line at the option of the county commissioners for improvement.

Just why it has been relegated to the rear and the preference given to other roads of less importance is not clearly known. The people over this way have a right to know why they have been discriminated against, and it is to be presumed this delegation that visits the county seat today will seek this information. They should not be content with vague promises of consideration, and the Charleroi Business Men's Association should make this improvement an issue. It has been relegated to the rear for six years, and our "turn" is in justice due

The Kansas Legislature has completed its business and adjourned sine die. It was the most progressive Legislature Kansas has had in many years, and more really worth-while laws were put into the statutes than Kansas has had in thirty years. Among the more important measures enacted are the following:

Creating a public utilities commission, with power to control all local and State wide public service corporations, prohibit issue of stocks and bonds where valuation would be unduly increased, and to prevent sales or transfers which would tend to create a monopoly in any city. Providing the Oregon plan for popular election of United States Senators and demanded that Congress submit a constitutional amendment to do this.

Submitting constitutional amendment to permit women to vote.

Passed a working men's compensation law. Kansas and New York are now the only States which have compensation laws.

Requiring that agriculture be taught in all schools.

Requiring all country schools to hold seven months school each year, and appropriating $150,000 to help weak school districts.

Providing for pensions of one-half average pay to school teachers, who have taught thirty years.

Abolishing all boards of education elected by city wards, putting all city schools under a commission of six members elected from city at large.

Establishing a sanatorium for tuberculosis patients.

Permitting townships in rural communities to establish township high schools of equal standing with city high schools.

Applying the Federal employers' liability law to Kansas mines and railroads.

New road laws which will permit building of real good roads throughout the state under the supervision of State highway engineer.

Making a second violation of the prohibitory law an offense punishable by one year in prison at hard labor

Prohibiting the publication of unsigned political advertisements.

A vital statistics law requiring the registration of births, deaths, causes of death and reports on contagious diseases.

PICKED UP IN PASSING

"Is that to inform the public that you're not mind readers?" asked a patron of Chief Clerk William McFall the Charleroi postoffice yesterday of pointing to the sign "Talk," which in prominent letters was placarded over the stamp and delivery windows of the office.

"That's it exactly," replied Mr. McFall. "Nearly every one who buys stamps seems to infer that we known exactly what they want, and we have to invariably ask what is desired. For instance, a woman shoves two cents through the window and says nothing The inference is that she wants a two-cent stamp, and one is shoved back in exchange. That inference is more likely to be wrong than right, as the women will display a couple of post cards and snap out:

"'I want two ones'

"If you ask her what she wants, the answer is as likely as not to be in withering tones:

"'Why, a two-cent stamp, of course.'

"This is all the more complicated when a patron shoves a nickel, a dime or even a dollar at you and awaits your initiative in asking what he wants. Therefore, the sign "Talk" is put up as a gentle reminder to the public that the office force here is not in the Madam Clifford class-able to read the thoughts of any person who shoves money through the stamp window."

A story comes from Sharon to the effect that over in Hickory township, Mercer county, lives an honest German citizen named Adolph Fox, who derives a good revenue selling doughnuts to the children of a school near his residence. Recently when the dicusssion about the high cost of living waged the fiercest, and everybody was talking about the increase in the cost of provisions and the necessity for retrenchment, Fox became so impressed that he began to consider how he could cut down his expenses in the doughnut trade and increase his profits.

He pondered long and seriously, and finally came to the conclusion that the only thing to do was to increase the size of the hole in the doughnuts So, instead of cutting them out with a large and small biscuit cutter, as heretofore, he cut the dough in long strips and twisted them together. He succeeded in getting a larger hole in the doughnuts all right, but the children discovered they were getting larger doughnuts for the same money, and the German's trade increased accordingly.

Seeing that he was losing money, Fox sought the advice of a neighbor. After he had explained his device for cutting down expenses and its failure to work, the neighbor said:

"But don't you see that by increasing the size of the hole in the doughnut it takes more dough to goaround?"

"Py jimminy, dot's so," exclaimed the German thoughtfully scratching his head, "I tink I go back to der old style."

A WOMAN'S INFLUENCE.

Effect It Produced on Her Husband's Business Affairs.

A delegation of young men lately waited on their employer's wife with the oddest request on record "You see, madam," said the spokesman, "we want to have a half holiday every Saturday Now if you will be particularly nice to Mr Page for a few days we'll go to him and ask"—

"Gentlemen," the lady haughtily interrupted, do you imply that I do not understand what is due to my husband?"

"Oh, I know all about it, madam" the spokesman went on "I'm married myself Things go wrong in the house and you're tired and cross at breakfast Then we suffer at the office You stay up late to chaperon your daughter at a ball and we have more trouble at the office. You're a bit cross three mornings in succession for one reason or another, and we have a—a—terrible time at the office

"You see how the matter stands and how greatly you will oblige us by being more than usually agreeable to Mr Page for three or four days The fourth day give him the best breakfast you can—everything that he likes best—and we'll get what we want in three minutes.

"Talk about a woman having no influence in the business! Why, the humor she's in has more effect than a bank failure or a boom in trade."

She thought she ought to be angry but instead she laughed and agreed to the proposition, and four days later when they waited on the head of the firm he made the closing hour 12 o'clock and said never in the history of the firm had things run as satisfactorily as they had during the last four days.—London Tit-Bits.

How Gold Plate Is Made.

Talking of silver gilt plate, it is often spoken of as gold plate. One hears of the gold service at Windsor castle, of the gold plate owned by sovereigns of Europe and by other persons in this country as well as abroad As a matter of fact, these so called gold services are silver gilt, and only a few pieces of pure gold are owned by the English crown or any other crown. It may interest our readers to learn how this fire, mercurial or water gilding—for it is known by all of these three names—is done. Pure gold and mercury are mixed into a paste The silver article to be gilded has been chemically cleaned, is rubbed all over with this paste, which has been placed in a silk bag, just as the blue used in washing is put in a bag When the piece of plate has been rubbed over it is perfectly white. It is then put into an oven, and gradually the mercury goes off in fumes, leaving on the article a deposit of pure gold, which has practically become one with the piece of silver and will last for centuries.—London Cor. New York Post.

The Spider Cure.

The request for a "nut to put a spider in to cure baby's whooping cough" which recently startled a Somerset shopkeeper recalls the spider "cures" of the past There was, and indeed is, for instance, that Irish belief in the web as a remedy for cuts, wells and bruises and that superstition of the eastern counties which credited it with power to cure fevers The weaver of the web, too, was looked upon as a doctor of medicine.

A note from an ancient Notes and Queries gives the illustration "One of my parishioners suffering from ague," wrote a Somerset vicar, "was advised to catch a large spider and shut him up in a box As he pines away the disease is supposed to wear itself out." A similar belief prevailed in the south of Ireland, but there treacle had to be substituted for the box as coffin for the ague healer—Westminster Gazette

The Doctor's Joke.

A physician who never goes out at night without leaving directions as to where to find him if wanted professionally was at a theater near Forty second street recently with a friend. Just before the curtain went up on the second act an usher handed him a note reading. 'Come to the office at once. Don't telephone Come." The note was signed by a colleague and the doctor lost no time in obeying the peremptory summons Arriving at his destination, he was confronted by several friends, who coolly explained that he had been used to decide a bet as to the length of time it would take to cover the distance which he had traversed The victim's anger was only slightly appeased when he was assured that the perpetrators of the joke knew no one else who was good natured enough to furnish the information looked for.—New York Tribune.

Putting the Owl to Use.

There is a choice old recipe, in which the owl figures, "to make any one that sleepeth answer to whatsoever thou ask," given in "Physick For the Poor," published in London in 1657 It says that you are to "take the heart of an owl and his left leg and put that upon the breast of one that sleepeth, and they shall reveal whatsoever thou shalt ask them"

The Hindus, however, declare that the flesh or blood of an owl will make a person insane who eats or drinks it. On this account men who are devoured by jealousy of a rival or hatred of an enemy come furtively to the market and purchase an owl In silence they carry it home and secretly prepare a decoction, which an accomplice will put into the food or drink of the object of their malignant designs

Wanted a Supply.

"Politics," remarked a Washington official, "is a science as well as a circus One of the funniest things I ever heard in that connection was about the cowboy delegate to the constitutional convention of Nevada when that territory was about to become a state In the constitution was the stereotyped paragraph about the new state's having two senators to represent it in Washington When it was read to the convention the cowboy delegate rose and yelled out: 'What's the use of limiting it to two? We're overwhelmingly Republican, and we can elect as many as we want.'"—Washington Star.

The Demons.

"Critics are fine chaps," said an English actor, "but I must confess that when they condemn your play you feel annoyed.

"'I wonder why we call the people in the top of the house gods?' an actress asked an unsuccessful playwright once.

"'We do that,' the unsuccessful playwright answered, 'so as to distinguish them from the people in the bottom of the house who write the criticisms'"

It Depends.

An actor and a retired army man were discussing the perils of their respective callings.

"How would you like to stand with shells bursting all round you?" the general demanded

"Well," replied the actor, "it depends on the age of the egg."

Poor Venice.

Friend—And were you ever in Venice? Mr. Richquick—Yes Slowest town I was ever in. The sewers were busted all the time we were there!—Puck.

A Warm Welcome.

Delhi and Its History.

Shah Jehan in 1631 built the present city of Delhi, close to the old Delhi, and made it the royal residence. The Mohammedans still call it Shahjehanabad, the "city of the king of the world" Nadir Shah, the Persian usurper, captured it in 1789, massacred thousands of the inhabitants and bore away plunder to the value of nearly $100,000,000, including the famous peacock throne and the great Kohinoor diamond. The British first came into control in 1803, when the Mahrattas were defeated near Delhi by Lord Lake. When the sepoy mutiny broke out in 1857 Shah Mohammed Bahadour, then ninety years old, took command of the city and until the English again triumphed enjoyed the imperial state to which he had long been a stranger.

Harriman Told Him.

Harriman had an almost supernatural instinct for knowing what was going on and who was doing it in the mysteries of stock manipulation. Once when Southern Pacific had been going up fast, Harriman and various banking houses buying in concert, he called up on the telephone one of his private brokers. "Somebody is selling," he said. "Yes, sir," was the answer. "Well, hand the market 25,000 for me." Immediately he called up the head of a banking firm much interested in the market. "Who's selling Southern Pacific?" he asked. "I don't know; we haven't been able to find out," was the answer. "I'll tell you," snapped Harriman; "it's your house." And he cut off the connection before any reply to him could be made.—Exchange.

HONORED THE MONKEY.

Origin of the Coat of Arms of the Earl of Leinster.

Most of the wild animals have a place in heraldry, and many strange and impossible creatures, such as griffins, dragons and unicorns, have been invented as emblems of daring and valor. But the donkey and the monkey have not been so used, except in one instance, where the monkey has been admitted to the ranks of titled nobility. The story of this adoption is told by Mr Curtis in his book, "One Irish Summer."

On the Leinster coat of arms are three monkeys standing with plain collar and chained; motto, "Crom a-boo." "To Victory." This is the only coat of arms, I am told, that has ever borne a monkey in the design It was adopted by John Fitzthomas Fitzgerald in 1316 for romantic reasons.

While this Earl of Leinster was an infant he was in the castle of Woodstock, which is now owned by the Duke of Marlborough. The castle caught fire in the confusion the child was forgotten, and when the family and servants remembered him and started a search they found the nursery in ruins. But on one of the towers was a gigantic ape, a pet of the family, carefully holding the young earl in his arms. The animal, with extraordinary intelligence, had crawled through the smoke rescued the baby and carried it to the top of the tower.

When the earl had grown to manhood he discarded the family coat of arms and adopted the monkeys for his crest, and they have been retained to this day Wherever you find the tomb of a Fitzgerald you will see the monkeys at the feet of the effigy or under the inscription.

SPENDTHRIFT ISABELLA.

A Sight That Checked Her Royal Extravagance For Awhile.

We are accustomed to think that the day is long past when a sovereign could oppress and offend a whole kingdom by personal extravagance But the late Isabella of Spain belonged in spirit to the sixteenth century An incident of her reckless career—which ended in the loss of the throne—is noted in Munsey's Magazine.

She spent money, pouring it out like water, at a time when the treasury was nearly bankrupt and when the proverb "Poor as a Spaniard" was far too true. All her best advisers urged her to practice economy Very few of them succeeded, and these only for a short time.

A certain chamberlain of hers once hit upon a plan to make her realize how enormous were the sums that she was spending Passing through the hall of the palace, she was surprised to see a vast heap of silver pieces, resembling the contents of a great bin of wheat, but piled up in the middle of the floor The queen summoned her chamberlain

"What is the meaning of all this money?" she demanded of him

"Oh," he replied, with a low bow, "this is merely the amount which I have brought out to pay the bill of your majesty's glovemaker"

The queen colored and then laughed, and for several months she was less extravagant in her expenditures for clothes.

E Pluribus Unum.

The country is indebted to John Adams for its national motto, with an Englishman of note sharing in the honor It seems that while Adams was minister to England Sir John Prestwick, an eminent English antiquary, suggested to him a good motto to represent the union of the American colonies. Adams at once was taken with the idea, which he transmitted to Charles Thompson, the secretary of congress, who on June 20, 1782, reported to that body his design for a government seal In this the Latin legend "E Pluribus Unum" was to be borne on a ribbon held in the beak of an eagle.

Just where Sir John got the idea is not certain, but it is a fact that the motto was in use on the cover of the Gentleman's Magazine, first published in 1730, and it may have struck his fancy by its applicability to the situation then obtaining in America.

New Zealand's Glaciers.

The great size of the glaciers around Mount Cook, in New Zealand, has been often remarked The Tasman is eighteen miles long the Murchison ten miles, the Godley eight miles, the Mueller eight miles and the Hooker seven miles. Most of these glaciers have moraines of exceeding roughness, but the approaches to them are not steep, as is usually the case with European glaciers. The southern Alpine snow line is only a little over 7,000 feet. Glacially polished rocks are rare, and in many ways the mountains are singularly different from those of central Europe.

A Natural Mistake.

"I was just telling our friend here, Molly, that it was storming on the day of our marriage."

"Surely not, Hiram! The weather was perfectly lovely!"

"Well, well! I don't know how I got so mixed up about it; probably because it's been storming ever since!"—Atlanta Constitution.

A Fish Story.

"There are as good fish in the sea as were ever taken out of it," remarked Small to Young, who had been refused by Moneybag's daughter.

"Yes, I know. But they are not goldfish."

Circumstances are the rulers of the weak. They are but the instruments of the wise.—Samuel Lover.

RIDING THE BUZZARD.

The Ricebird Uses His Bulky Enemy as an Aeroplane.

People generally associate size and brute strength with victory, especially among the lower animals. Many times, however, this is far from being the case, especially in the bird kingdom Among the rice flats of the Carolinas there abound at some seasons of the year tiny ricebirds, birds so small that it takes two dozen for a good meal, though bones and all are eaten.

The great buzzard is found circling over the flats at all seasons He dreads the time for the ricebird to come, for he is then nearly pestered to death. It is a common sight to see one of these little birds fly up to a buzzard and, after dodging this way and that round the awkward bulk, finally alight well forward between the buzzard's wings on the back Here the tiny passenger grabs a few feathers in his beak and holds on for grim life After enjoying a ride for as long as he desires the little fellow hops off and is gone before Mr Buzzard is well aware of it

The peculiar part of the whole thing is that apparently the only purpose the ricebird has in getting on the back of the buzzard is to take a free ride It puzzles every one who chances to see the little drama to find any other reason [illegible] frequent occurrence, and the little birds seem to enjoy it immensely.—New York Tribune

INDIAN DEATH CUSTOMS.

Graves of the Hopi and the Hogans of the Navajos.

The Hopi Indian believes that the souls of all deceased adults go to the Grand canyon When a man dies a grave is dug The nearest relative of the deceased carries the body to the grave, places it in a sitting posture facing the Grand canyon, erects a long pole between the legs, locks the dead man's fingers around it and fills the grave To the top of the pole, protruding above the ground, he ties one end of a string and leads the other end in the direction of the Grand canyon At the end of four days it is believed the soul leaves the body, climbs the pole and with the string to guide it goes to its eternal home in the canyon.

The Navajos, on the contrary, are very superstitious about handling dead bodies They believe that the evil spirit that kills the person hovers around the hogan, as they call their lodge, awaiting other victims, and a hogan in which a death occurs is never occupied again. Navajo hogans are always built with the entrance facing the east. When a death occurs in one of them an opening is invariably made in the north side Therefore when one sees a hogan with the north side knocked out he may be certain some one has died in it.—Dillon Wallace in Outing

Antiquity of the Dog.

It is impossible to say when dogs were first domesticated, but some of the earliest traces are found on Egyptian monuments, with figures of dogs somewhat of the greyhound type which date back to at least 3,000 B C Even in those remote days the dog was highly esteemed Coming down a little later, we read that Ulysses 3,000 years ago was [illegible] dog Argus after his swineherd had failed to do so

Plutarch speaks of Alcibiades, who cut off the tail of his dog, and Myron, the sculptor, immortalized the animal by causing his image in marble. The Romans valued their dogs and kept them from the chase and also as pets Alexander the Great owned a veteran fit to tackle a lion.

A Bibulous Goose.

Geese will live to a great age, and some few years ago I came across a very venerable goose (male or female I cannot now say) in Westmoreland in unexpected circumstances I was walking from Milnthorpe to Arnside and at Ganaside found an acquaintance sitting on a seashore bench feeding a pet goose with biscuits steeped in ale He told me that this goose had been in his family for over forty years and was partial to beer, stout and even gin

Rev James Hall, M. A., told of a goose in Stirlingshire, Scotland, that had been killed by accident after living at the same place for "above eighty years."—London Field.

Skating on a Tennis Court.

When one is building a tennis court provision may easily be made for a rink by excavating from six inches to one foot deeper than the surrounding ground and making this depressed area as much greater than his court as his purse or surroundings will permit. Twenty-five feet in the clear outside the lines of the court will give an area of over 11,000 square feet—an ample space for a number of people to occupy without crowding. The court may be flooded by means of a hose attached to the house faucet, first saturating the ground and then when it has frozen flooding the court.—Suburban Life.

Deafness of Blue Eyed White Cats.

All white cats are not deaf, but most blue eyed white cats are. It has never been discovered why the blue eyed cats should have the tendency to deafness, but it is a fact, while there has never been a case known of a yellow eyed or green eyed white cat being deaf unless by accident.—St. Nicholas

Duty.

Duty stands for the most part close at hand, unobscured, simple, immediate. If any man has the will to hear her voice, to him is she willing to enter and be his ready guest.—Francis Peabody.

Genuine Sardines.

Genuine sardines are the young of the pilchard. Their name comes from the fact that they are most numerous off the coast of Sardinia. They swim in the spring in shoals containing millions—fish shaped shoals ten miles long and a half mile wide. The sardines are netted and taken at once to the shore. There they are washed, scraped and sprinkled with salt The salt is soon removed, the heads and gills cut off and there is another washing. Then, on beds of green brush, the fish are dried in the sun. Next they are boiled in olive oil till cooked thoroughly. The packers—women always—take them now and pack them in the tin boxes we all know, filling up each box with boiling oil, fitting on the lid and making the box air tight by soldering the joints together with a jet of hot steam Sardines are more or less perfect according as they are prepared more or less immediately after their capture and according as the oil they are packed in is more or less pure.

The Young French Girl.

A young French girl enters the theater with her father. She takes her seat directly in front of the privileged American girls "finishing" their education. Her untouched flowerlike face is alight with anticipated pleasure, with a soft virulness of intelligence that could never be cursed with the word "brainy" Her hair is bound with a little old fashioned snood and tiny buckle; a strangely simple evening dress covers the exquisite ardor of her slender body Quickly four faces, the faces of the overindulged, the overprecocious, the overathletic and the overdressed, turn to study her There is something to learn in this little French maid, whose eyes never meet a man's, who is never allowed to walk alone on the street, whose unconscious grace envelops her like a veil, who is sheltered like a delicate bird, yet trained to the utmost energy, reserve, accomplishment and usefulness.—Atlantic.

Wall Street Superstition.

Almost all the Wall street speculators are superstitious fellows who believe in charms and amulets. In their pockets they carry lucky coins, a rabbit's foot, a horse chestnut or something of the kind. One Wall street man, much envied by his companions has a short piece of a hangman's rope to conjure with. Many of the customers in the offices are even more credulous than the professional traders in their belief in signs and omens. There is a deep seated tradition that Tuesday is "low day" in a "bull market" and "high day" in a "bear market." Some persons speculate on "systems," and others employ "charts" Once they exploited a machine in Wall street known as a "market register" It was about as effective as helping anybody to win at Stock Exchange speculation as it is to rub up against a hunchback for luck just before you bet on a horse race.—Munsey's Magazine.

He Got Valuable Information.

The story is told of the times of Aretas Blood and the old Manchester locomotive works that a student came to Mr. Blood once and wanted to study the business of locomotive building in his vacation days The student came well recommended, and Mr. Blood, who never had much use for these "tech" people, sent him down to the boiler shop and placed him in charge of the old foreman. The old man took the "tech" man around, and in the course of the inspection of the shop they came across one boiler on the inside of which was a man at work.

"How does that man get out?" inquired the "tech" man.

"Oh," said the venerable pilot, "he doesn't get out. We always count upon losing at least one man in building a boiler"—Manchester Union

Napoleon Obeyed the Mob.

In "The Corsican—A Diary of Napoleon's Life In His Own Words," Bonaparte tells how, as an obscure soldier, he witnessed some of the opening scenes of the revolution: "I lodged Rue du Mail, Place des Victories At the sound of the tocsin and at the news that the Tuileries were attacked I started for the Carousel. Before I had got there in the Rue des Petits Champs I was passed by a mob of horrible looking fellows parading a head stuck on a pike. Thinking I looked too much of a gentleman, they wanted me to shout 'Vive la nation!' which I did promptly, as may easily be imagined"

When a Great Man Dies.

There can be but austere and serious thoughts in all hearts when a sublime spirit makes its majestic entrance into another life, when one of those beings who have long soared above the crowd on the visible wings of genius, spreading all at once other wings which we did not see, plunges swiftly into the unknown.—From Hugo's Funeral Oration on Balzac.

TRIED TO BE NICE.

But Fannie Made an Awful Mess of It With the Old Lady.

"When Fannie is bent upon pleasing," sighed Fannie's younger sister, "she can certainly make a horrible mess of things Last Sunday Charlie Evans having arrived at the point where he felt he wanted his family's opinion of me, invited us both up to take tea with his mother The minute I laid eyes on his mother I knew Fannie would get in trouble—she simply can't help getting nervously foolish when there's a religious person around.

"Charlie's mother kissed us and, addressing herself to Fannie as the elder said something about our being very sweet to come and see a childless old woman Whereat Fannie looked at Charlie and his two brothers and replied feelingly that it must be a terrible disappointment to have only them. Mrs Evans, to rectify my sister's misapprehension, told us proudly that she had three more sons, not present.

"By this time Fannie realized that she had made a bad beginning and leaped further in with the supposition that the other three were off having a good time instead of moping at home The older lady drew herself up and said serenely

"'My three sons are in heaven, Miss Barnes.'

"'Oh, how awful!' came Fannie's ready gasp.

"'No, not awful at all!' and Mrs Evans was positively glaring at us 'I feel that they were specially blessed in being allowed to pass thus early to their Lord They died as little children'

"'Dear me how glad you must have been!' blurted out flustered Fannie

"By this time I had kicked a hole in Fannie's ankle, and that quieted her for awhile. She might have kept still for the rest of the evening had not her pet subject, the higher education of woman, come up for the old lady's disapproval Then Fannie made a hand spring into the conversation by remarking that when we had more educated mothers there would be less infant mortality

"And, mind you, Fannie was really trying to be nice for my sake."—New York Times.

TRAINING SEALS.

These Dexterous Animals Easily Taught to Perform Tricks.

"The cardinal principle in training animals," says an animal trainer, "is not to attempt to make an animal do anything contrary to the nature of its particular species To be successful a trainer must know enough about the habits of the animals he has under training to fit the tricks he would teach them to their natural bent

"The seal is very easily taught. You begin with one seal, some small pieces of fish and a string You let the seal sit on his pedestal, something he likes to do by nature, then you throw him one of the pieces of fish, and he naturally and easily catches it. Next you tie a piece of fish on the end of your string and swing it toward the seal He catches this, too, and you keep moving away from him and swinging the fish to him from an increasing distance Now you are ready to begin with the hat or cornucopia. You put a piece of fish in the bottom of it and toss it to the seal The seal is dexterous by nature and his nose, quickly detecting the fish in the tip of the cone, seeks it out. The cone catches on his snout, and he bites out the fish and tosses the cone aside. Before long he comes to associate the cone with fish, and he will catch any number of similar ones and toss them aside when he fails to find what he wants.

"Balancing the big rubber ball is based on the same principle. The ball is soaked in fishy brine and thrown to the seal. He gets the odor and tries his best to get into the ball and find what he is after Thus results in his balancing the ball on his nose, a feat to which his supple neck and his natural feeding habits are all adapted, and then he gets his piece of fish as a prize."—New York World

History In Toys.

The history of the world is crystallized in the children's toys Each great war leaves soldiers in the nursery cupboard dressed correctly to a strap and button This has always been so. As each successive age in the world's history has gone by the weapons of that age have passed to the hands of the boys as toys There are in our great museums miniature crossbows, spears and shields. Toy armor as finely inlaid and engraved as any real accouterments is occasionally to be seen, and old prints show the boys playing with such figures. Even the children of the French revolution had their toy guillotines.—Collier's.

Sickly Children
Letters from Mothers

"I wish I could induce every mother, who has a delicate, sickly child, to try your delicious Cod Liver and Iron Tonic VINOL. It restored our little daughter to health and strength after everything else had failed."—Mrs. C. W. Stump, Canton, Ohio.

Mrs. F. P. Skonnard, of Minneapolis, Minn., writes, "I want to recommend VINOL to every mother who has a weak or sickly child. My little boy was sickly, pale, and had no appetite for two years. I tried different medicines and doctors—without benefit,—but—thanks to VINOL, he is a well and healthy boy to-day."

C. Allen, of New Bedford, Mass., writes, "My two puny children gained rapidly in flesh and strength in a very short time after taking VINOL."

WHERE SALVE FAILS

In regard to skin diseases medical authorities are now agreed on this:

Don't imprison the disease germs in your skin by the use of greasy salves, and thus encourage them to multiply A true cure of all eczematous diseases can be brought about only by using the healing agents in the form of a liquid

WASH THE GERMS OUT. A simple wash A compound of Oil of Wintergreen, Thymol, and other ingredients as combined in the D D D Prescription, penetrates to the disease germs and destroys it, then soothes and heals the skin as nothing else has ever done.

DO YOU know of anyone who is old enough to read, who has not seen that sign at a railroad crossing?

If everyone has seen it at some time or other, then why doesn't the railroad let the sign rot away? Why does the railroad company continue to keep those signs at every crossing?

Maybe you think, Mr. Merchant, "Most everybody knows my store, I don't have to advertise."

Your store and your goods need more advertising than the railroads need do to warn people to "Look Out for the Cars."

Nothing is ever completed in the advertising world.

The Department Stores are a very good example—they are continually advertising—and they are continually doing a good business

If it pays to run a few ads 'round about Christmas time, it certainly will pay you to run advertisements about all the time.

It's just business, that's all, to

A Buttered Book.

How the Rev. Mr. Johnston, a Scottish minister and the author of numerous books, succeeded in getting one of his works reviewed by Alexander Russel, the distinguished editor of the Scotsman, is told by the writer of "Famous Editors."

A member of Mr. Johnston's congregation was an old and valued servant in Mr. Russel's family. When the preacher published his new book he asked this member to bring it under the notice of her master, with the request to review it in the columns of the Scotsman. Glad to be of service to her master, the good woman lost no time in making her wish known to the celebrated editor and next morning placed "The Gospel Roll" beside his breakfast cup.

When at breakfast Mr. Russel took up the book and remarked, with a merry twinkle in his eye.—"Helen, this is an awful dry roll which you have given me this morning."

"Perhaps it is, sir," the servant quickly replied, "but you can butter it weel on both sides."

Next morning an excellent review appeared.

Conkling and Thurman.

Senator Roscoe Conkling was once addressing the senate in an impassioned manner and seemed to direct his remarks to Senator Thurman. At length the latter got irritated.

"Does the senator from New York," he roared, "expect me to answer him every time he turns to me?"

For a moment Mr. Conkling hesitated, and everybody expected a terrific explosion. Then, with an air of exquisite courtesy, he replied:

"When I speak of the law I turn to the senator from Ohio as the Mussulman turns toward Mecca. I turn to him as I do to the English common law as the world's most copious fountain of human jurisprudence."

The usually decorous senate broke into a storm of applause, and the Thurman eye moistened a little. The two statesmen were the best of friends and greatly enjoyed each other's society when "off duty."

Always.

JUDGE UMBEL MUST GIVE ALL DETAILS

Supreme Court Requires Former Fayette Jurist to Make Campaign Audit

A decision has been filed in the Supreme Court at Philadelphia affirming the Superior Court, which decided that Judge Robert E. Umbel of Fayette county must detail campaign expenses.

This ruling sustains the corrupt practices act, which requires an audit of a candidate's political expenses.

The required number of citizens of Fayette county filed a petition, alleging that his account did not give his expenses in detail, as required by law, and that they were informed large sums of money had been expended contrary to law to get the nomination.

The quarter sessions court of Fayette county ruled that a candidate need not designate specially by whom or for what purpose money used in the campaign was spent.

The Superior Court reversed this decision, and sent the case back for rehearing. The Supreme Court upheld the ruling.

HE WAS NOT A FLIRT.

Therefore He Resented the Woman's Attempts at Familiarity.

He was riding homeward, comfortably seated and reading his paper. Being a trifle nearsighted, he was applying himself even more closely to his paper than other homegoing passengers. Thus intent in the day's news, he was startled when a woman came up beside him and touched him lightly on the shoulder, at the same time casting a longing eye on his seat.

He is a polite man, and he got up. "A woman with that much nerve is entitled to a seat," he muttered to himself. "The idea of a woman deliberately nudging a man out of his seat." Other women standing near by laughed unreservedly. He hid his embarrassment behind his paper, for he felt that his good nature had been imposed upon and that the laugh was on him.

By and by there was a vacant seat next to the one he had given up to the woman, and he sat down once more. The woman turned and looked at him amusedly. He could feel her gaze, even though he made a bluff at being intensely interested in his paper. Pretty raw, it seemed to him, for a woman deliberately to take the seat of a total stranger and then sit there and laugh at him because he was such a mark.

Then the woman spoke to him. "Aren't you going to talk to me?" she asked.

He could stand her familiarity no longer. "Well, of all the"— He stopped right there when he looked around and recognized her. It was his wife!—Cleveland Leader.

Invisible Indians.

All Indians seem to have learned a wonderful way of walking unseen, making themselves invisible like certain spiders, which, in case of alarm, caused, for example, by a bird alighting on the bush their webs are spread upon, immediately bounce themselves up and down on their elastic threads so rapidly that only a blur is visible. The wild Indian power of escaping observation, even where there is little or no cover to hide in, was probably slowly acquired in hard hunting and fighting lessons while trying to approach game, take enemies by surprise or get safely away when compelled to retreat. And this experience transmitted through many generations seems at length to have become what is vaguely called instinct.—John Muir in Atlantic.

THE PROCTER & GAMBLE CO.

A Lightning Change Artist.

The rapidity with which chameleons change their color is marvelous. You gather one from an outdoor shrub and it immediately becomes dark, almost black, hissing and with its mouth wide open, threatening to bite. Meanwhile it is never still, but continues to crawl upward whenever possible—up you, up your sleeve, always upward. By degrees the angry black changes into whatever color is nearest. If one's dress is of a brownish color so is the chameleon's.

The Simple Maid.

'Twas in a simple country town, and the maid of all work was simple and innocent in sympathy. When she returned from shopping half a sovereign short in her change Mrs. Mango-Chutney was naturally incensed.

"Go back to each shop, you careless girl," she told the weeping maid, "and tell them you are half a sovereign short in your money and they must give it you."

Susan went and was back again in half an hour. Entering her mistress' sanctum, she laid five half sovereigns on the table before her. Faithful as always, she had carried out Mrs. Mango-Chutney's instructions to the letter, and each shopkeeper, fearful of doing wrong and hurting a fellow creature, had thrust the missing coin upon the bewildered girl.—London Answers.

The Offending Black Bottle.

A church member in a lonely district of Saskatchewan absented himself from services for some months. On being approached on the subject he said he was sorry, but it was impossible to attend any more. He was pressed to give reasons and at length said it was owing to the bad conduct of the superintending clergyman and catechist.

He and others had witnessed them drinking when driving round on their visits. They had passed a black bottle from hand to hand. It was impossible to attend the ministry of such men. Inquiries proved that the offending "bottle" was a pair of field-glasses with which the drivers surveyed the surrounding country and tried to locate the various churches, shacks and trails.—Sunday at Home.
